supply power to said updating means when said main power source is incapable of supplying said power;

updating a start time to come after a current time when the communication device is in operation by an updating means, wherein said auxiliary power source does not supply power to said updating means when said main power source is incapable of supplying said power, and when the main power source is incapable of supplying said power, making a new start when a current time established by said clock coincides with a previously updated start time; supplying power from a main power source to both a first part and a second part of a processing section for the device, and when the device is stopped by accident, supplying power to the second part from an auxiliary power source, and not supplying power to the first part, and automatically making a new start when a current time established by a clock coincides with the previously updated start time.

a memory for storing an augmented time which is greater than a current time and is updated periodically using a first clock; a controller powered by said auxiliary power source, said controller being configured to set a start time when said main power source is incapable of providing said power, wherein said auxiliary power source does not supply power to said first clock when said main power source is incapable of supplying said power.
